Food and Farming in Morgan County, West Virginia

Momentum is building around food and farming in Morgan County. Working together as a community, we will incrementally enhance the local economy linked to farm products and food production through an increase in the purchase and consumption of local products and services. By sharing ideas and resources, we are building the framework necessary to find innovative ways to support businesses in our community.

The Berkeley Springs Farmers Market Celebrates 10 Years

The Berkeley Springs Farmers Market supports the development of local agriculture through workshops, field support, and conference attendance for members, new producers and products workshops and representation in state and national organizations.

The Market benefits the community by supporting agriculture and the local economy. It provides locally grown and fresh produce direct to consumers, provides produce to local food kitchens and creates a sense of place for the community.

The producers have developed a broad range of products and continue to expand each year. The Market also has a number of special events and the local Master Gardeners provide educational programs throughout the season in addition to their information booth at the Sunday market.

Every year, market farmers donate produce to food pantries in Berkeley Springs. Farmers also partner with the West Virginia Department of Agriculture and accept Senior Farmers Market vouchers and WIC coupon vouchers.

The Market supports direct marketing opportunities by providing a venue to sell products in downtown Berkeley Springs, directly to local restaurants, retail businesses and institutions, wholesale and direct from the farm to consumers.

New Morgan County Association (MCAFF)

The Morgan County Association for Food and Farms (MCAFF) is seeking members. The purpose of the organization is to support agriculture's contribution to a vital local economy, support local farms and farmers, encourage marketing of local farmer products, develop farm and consumer education, expand community development, increase service to underserved communities and preserve the natural resources of Morgan County.

Membership is extended to any person who is interested in furthering the purpose of the organization. There is no restriction on membership other than registering for membership and payment of dues.

Members may have an opportunity to volunteer in areas such as: community gardens/kitchens, consumer education, farmers market, fundraising and grant writing, marketing/communications, services to support farmers and growers, and farm to school/youth projects.

There is a $20 yearly membership. If you are interested in becoming a member of MCAFF make your check payable to MCAFF and mail to: 129 Fairfax Street, Berkeley Springs, WV 25411. If you have detailed questions, contact Larry Lower 304-258-3815.
